

Dear Friends,

As a Councilmember for the City of San Jose, home to a high percentage of low income and homeless residents and families, I know that providing resources such as healthy meals and amenities to those in need is not always easy.

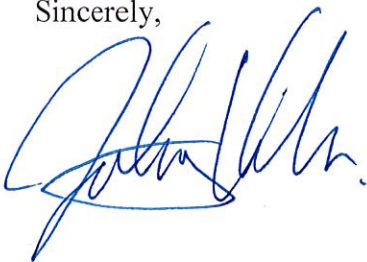

Hunger at Home has worked not only to advocate for nutrition and educate the community on the hunger crisis in San Jose, but they have also donated countless meals to the nonprofits who serve them to their clients. Through their donated meals, Hunger at Home works to provide healthy meals to those who would have otherwise been eating cheap and unhealthy food or not eating at all.

Along with providing meals, Hunger at Home works to collect resources for their community. With help from their sponsors, Hunger at Home collects and donates items ranging anywhere from silverware and plates, to gym equipment and furniture. These donations help meet the needs of their clients who would have never had access to these items on their own.

In the past year, Hunger at Home has partnered with multiple nonprofit organizations to help host events in San Jose. These events spread awareness for the hunger crisis, and enhance the community they work in.

I commend Hunger at Home for their ongoing work towards providing resources, education, and healthy meals to those who need them most, and I am thankful that they have chosen our community as their community.

Sincerely,

Johnny Khamis
Councilmember, City of San Jose
